MOBILE EDGE JOINS FIGHT AGAINST CYSTIC FIBROSIS

Mobile Edge introduces new G-Pak to benefit the Boomer Esiason Foundation

ANAHEIM, CA – April 20, 2006 -- Mobile Edge, the premiere designer of innovative and stylish notebook computer carrying cases and accessories, today proudly announced their partnership with the Boomer Esiason Foundation (BEF) to help raise funds for cystic fibrosis awareness and research. Mobile Edge introduced the G-Pak, named after Gunnar Esiason, Boomer's son, and will donate 10 percent of the retail sales of the G-Pak to the Foundation.

"It is our distinct pleasure to have the opportunity to work with the Boomer Esiason Foundation to help raise funds for such an important cause," noted G. David Cartwright, President and CEO, Mobile Edge. "We are delighted to be associated with Boomer and his terrific organization. I am very impressed with the work that they have done and we at Mobile Edge look forward to making a significant contribution to their efforts with this program."

The G-Pak is a custom designed laptop backpack toting a distinct G-Pak logo and modern stenciled writing over various parts of the backpack. The G-Pak is made of durable ballistic nylon and includes the Mobile Edge Computer Safety Cell™ computer compartment providing superior protection for laptops. The G-Pak sports an ergonomically designed and ventilated back panel to help ensure user comfort. A convenient media pocket is designed to carry an iPod™ or MP3 player and features a special pass through port for the headphone cord. Inside, the G-Pak comes with additional compartments for the notebook's power supply, files, work papers, pens, and two pockets for a cell phone and other accessories.

Additionally, Mobile Edge plans to offer a BEF Deluxe Backpack as well as a Business Tote designed specifically for women. All the BEF related products will begin shipping in June.
